Dedicated by Whyte

On Friday afternoon my "brother" illett Lawrence of Greenwood visit- d me, and took Mabel and me rid ng in his air-conditioned Cadillac.

On Thursday of last week we went riding out No. 8 to Gore Springs and noted the fine, small post office building at Gore Springs.

Guy James' widow lives on a fine hill top. Easy to see all the rich crops in the valley. It's a lovely site for a home.

At Oxberry we picked a cotton boll as large as a hen egg, and tomatoes nearly as big as a quart cup. Corn crop is better than in years.

The new State Highway, a continuation of No. 8, is being built West of Oxberry. Two bridges one over the Dubard ditch, and one spanning Youngs Bayou, are being constructed now This highway follows pretty much the Whitaker Highway through to Philipp.

Thanks to Grady Rosser for a nice encourageing letter.

Well our man Coleman, ran a y close second in the governor's He will run it off with who m Neely called "Promising Paul."

On our way to the farm we saw ld man Bob McCormick taking it y on his front porch. Often we Max sitting on that nice cool rch. They live at Bew Springs w, after being displaced by Gre- ndaa Dam.

Grenada needs one or maybe two more police patrol cars as bad as a dead man needs a coffin!!!!

W. E. Johnson, City Engineer, Died Here July 28

Mr. William Elmer Johnson died at Grenada Hospital on Thursday, July 28, and funeral services were conducted from All Saints Episcopal Church at 2:30 p. m. on Friday with Rev. C. S. Liles of Jackson, Miss. officiating. Interrment was in Woodlawn Memorial Park. Garner Bros. Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Mr. Johnson would have been 78 years old on October 12, 1955. Born in Kentucky, near the Ohio line, his mother died at his birth, and an uncle, a Mr. Johnson, reared him. When a very young man, his father died and left him some cash money, and with it, and working at college, he graduated in civil engineering at the University of Ohio.

In 1925, while working in Water Valley, he married Miss Lilly Pennington. They had no children, however, Mr. Johnson was devoted to his wife's nieces and assisted with their education, especially that of Miss Hattie Williams now of Jackson, Mississippi.

Mr. Johnson was a staunch Episcopalian and served, with dignity, as Vestryman for many years. One of his prize possessions was his grand mother's prayer and hymnal book, dated 1860. He was the owner of a life time membership of the Grand Lodge of Masons of Lebanon, Ohio, and an active member of the local Masonic lodge.

He served the city board for many years as City Engineer, and he visioned a more beautiful city with better zoneing than is now in force Although Grenada was not his native home, he loved Grenada and wanted to always have his home and final resting place here. He is survived by his widow.

The following relatives from out of town attended the funeral: Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Ritter of Water Valley, Mrs. Claud Triplett and Mrs. Gertrude Morgan of Kosciusko, Mrs Garvice Erwin of Memphis and Miss Hattie Williams of Jackson. Miss Williams remained here with her aunt for part of this week.

Grenada County Farm Bureau News

For sometime there has been much discussion of the cotton situation, both from the standpoint of the cotton producing region and the attitude of the Congress toward the group which is struggling with this problem.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Grenada County Farm Bureau, it was decided that in order for the farmers of the county to be brought current on the cotton situation, it would be logical that they be called together, either in community groups or at a county wide meeting. After considerable discussion, it was finally decided that if we could get someone well informed on the problems facing the cotton producer for a one day meeting, it would be better to have a county-wide meeting than to attempt a number of community meetings where we might not be able to secure services of a well informed speaker.

It was, therefore, decided that we would ask all Farm Bureau members to attend a county wide meeting at the City Hall in Grenada at 10 a. m. Saturday, August 6.

While this meeting is specifically called to inform Farm Bureau members of the cotton situation, it is not limited to Farm Bureau members alone, therefore, any of your neighbors who are interested in a meeting of this kind is given an opportunity to come and you should feel perfectly free to extend them an invitation.

Mr. Sam Thompson, President of the Leflore County Farm Bureau, who has been in Washington practically all year and, who perhaps knows more about the congressional attitude toward the cotton situation than any other man in the state will be present for this meeting. I believe he will be able to answer any questions you might have in addition to giving us all an over-all picture of what cotton is really facing.

McRee Feed Mill Opens Here

Henry McRee (above) has just completed a new feed mill on Highway 8 on Jackson Street. He attended only 7 years of school in a small town in the University of Mississippi Class of 1950 and a graduate Feeding Advisor of the Ralston Purina Training School.

Before Mr. McRee earned the title of Feeding Advisor, he had some of the most complete training ever given to a feed sales and serviceman most of it practical, on-the-farm experience. Furthermore, his training continues with refresher courses every few months, and they are backed up by one of the world's largest commercial research farms and laboratories, all working for the interest of farmers. McRee Feed Mill is the direct result of requests made to the Grenada County Chamber of Commerce, by local farmers. It will serve Grenada County as follows:

give market price for your grain, balance your grain to do a more efficient job when used for feed, manufacture Check-R-Mix Feed using local grain and Purina Concentrates and assist Farmers with Grain storage problems.

Mr. McRee's life-work is built around service to farm people, who are eager to do the best possible job with their poultry and livestock. Any time you need help or want to talk over your breeding, management sanitation or feeding questions with a friendly advisor call him. He'll be glad to visit your farm or ranch at your convenience. The next time you have a chance stop by the Mill and get acquainted. Or if you'd rather phone 454 to have Bob Pierce call on you. Bob is a mighty reliable young route sales and serviceman.

Congratulations Mc.

Loyalty Under Fire

Lesson for August 7, 1955

SOMETHING can be learned from history, even when it is the history of obscure men. Perhaps we can even learn more from the history of obscure, little-known, forgotten men, because we are mostly of that sort ourselves, than we can from the biographies of the rich and great. We are invited in this week's lesson to consider a little community of displaced persons more than 2,000 years ago.

Dr. Foreman

Most of those displaced persons were citizens of Jerusalem, or had been. That city had been laid flat by Nebuchadnezzar's army. That the little nation of Judah had brought the war on itself, that the prophets, and especially Jeremiah, had predicted exactly what happened.—all this did not soften the blow. Those people were exiles, but with a special bitterness. It is one thing to be driven from home hoping to go back some day; it is another thing to have no home to go back to. If those displaced persons could have been taken back to Palestine, to the exact spot where Jerusalem stood, all they would have found was rubble. They would have perished of starvation . . . They knew this all too well. Yet in their memories Jerusalem still lived, a dream-city unchanged by time. They wept when they saw it in their mind's eye; but tears did not wash away the picture they loved. Did it do them any good, this remembering and remembering a city that was no more, a city they would never see again? Yes, it did. For even if that city were less fair than their homesick minds portrayed it, the good which they remembered would remain as an ideal. The community they would build in exile would be as near like the best they remembered as they could make it. A remembered glory that comes no more may become an ideal for today's world. Loyalty to memory may be something better than laying posies on well-tended graves; it may be the channel through which the best of yesterday flows into today and tomorrow.

Loyal to Life's Must's

These exiled Jews often dreamed of going back. That was before Jerusalem fell, and before Jeremiah wrote them a famous letter. (Jer. 29.) You will never see your native land again, he told them. The captivity will end, but not in your lifetime. Meanwhile be good citizens where you are. Build houses, plant gardens live with your growing families. Seek the welfare of the city where I have sent you into exile . . . That may have been hard advice to take; but they took it. Dreams of the past can be slow poison if all they produce is tears. Dreams can make men crazy, they can keep people from looking at life's realities. Dream-wishes can keep men from doing what is possible under the circumstances. Jeremiah did not wish these people to forget Jerusalem. He wanted them to recognize the Must's of the situation where they were. There is such a thing as loyalty to the inevitable. "Shake hands with the Inevitable" is a good rule for the really inevitable is the hand of Providence.

Loyal to God

The story of the young men who chose death rather than be disloyal to God by worshiping Nebuchadnezzar's golden image, reaches one of its high points in what the young men said to the king. God will deliver us, they said; He is able to deliver us and we believe He will; but if not—if there is no God, or if He is not able to save us, or if He does not choose to save us, if He forsakes us altogether, we will not be disloyal to Him. The story is a kind of parable about all the loyal servants of the true God in great pagan Babylonia during those exile years. Many Jews must have been tempted to take over the religion of their conquerors, just as after the second World War there was a rush toward Christianity in Japan. Certainly there in Babylon there were many voices whispering or calling aloud, Bow down! Conform, be like everybody else, when you are in Babylon do as the Babylonians do. Don't be peculiar, don't be stubborn, leave your invisible God and come worship the golden gods to whom the nation prays! But the young men made the right choice, hard then, hard always: They would be loyal to the true God, even if his deliverance was delayed.

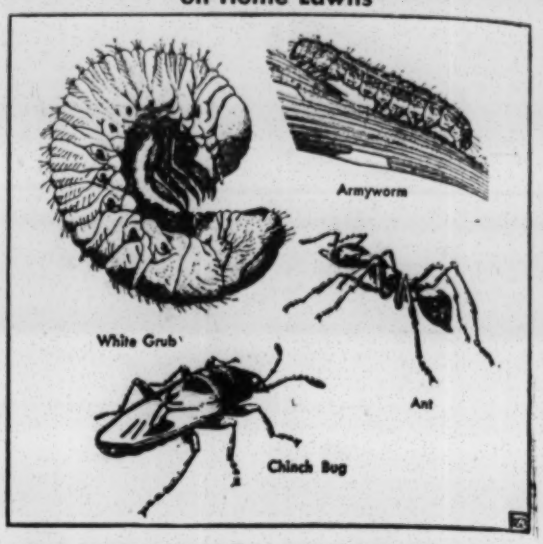
Wrecking Crew Now at Work on Home Lawns



Warm weather brings forth a horde of insects, as any home gardener knows. It's easy to see the surface pests that chew on green grass and foliage, but entomologists say that insect larvae in the soil also cause serious damage by eating the roots of grass and shrubs.

Lawn and garden experts are urging homeowners to treat early in the season to avoid the ravages of the insect "wrecking crew." One way to get rid of hungry bugs and grubs that eat the beauty out of your turf and ornamentals is to apply dieldrin, a lawn insecticide that lasts a long time.

Lasts for years in soil

In the soil, dieldrin actually provides protection against insect larvae for years. On the surface, this insecticide is effective for weeks. Cutworms, ants, lawn moths, chinch bugs, white grubs, and even mosquitoes, chiggers and fleas that live in grass and shrubbery, are controlled by dieldrin. Entomologists explain that this insecticide, one of the new members of the chlorinated hydrocarbon family, kills insects if they eat, breathe or touch it.

The new bug killer is available in several forms, all of which can be applied easily by the homeowner to turf or ornamental plants.

Choose suitable formulation

It's up to the gardener to choose the formulation best suited to his needs. He should spread it over the entire lawn, making sure not to miss areas. The insecticide can be applied anytime, but after application turf should be watered to soak the insecticide into the soil.

Formulations of dieldrin are prepared and sold by leading insecticide manufacturers under their own brand names, such as Ortho, Acme, Real-Kill, Lawntrol, Black Leaf and others. These products can be purchased at most garden supply stores, hardware stores and insecticide dealers.

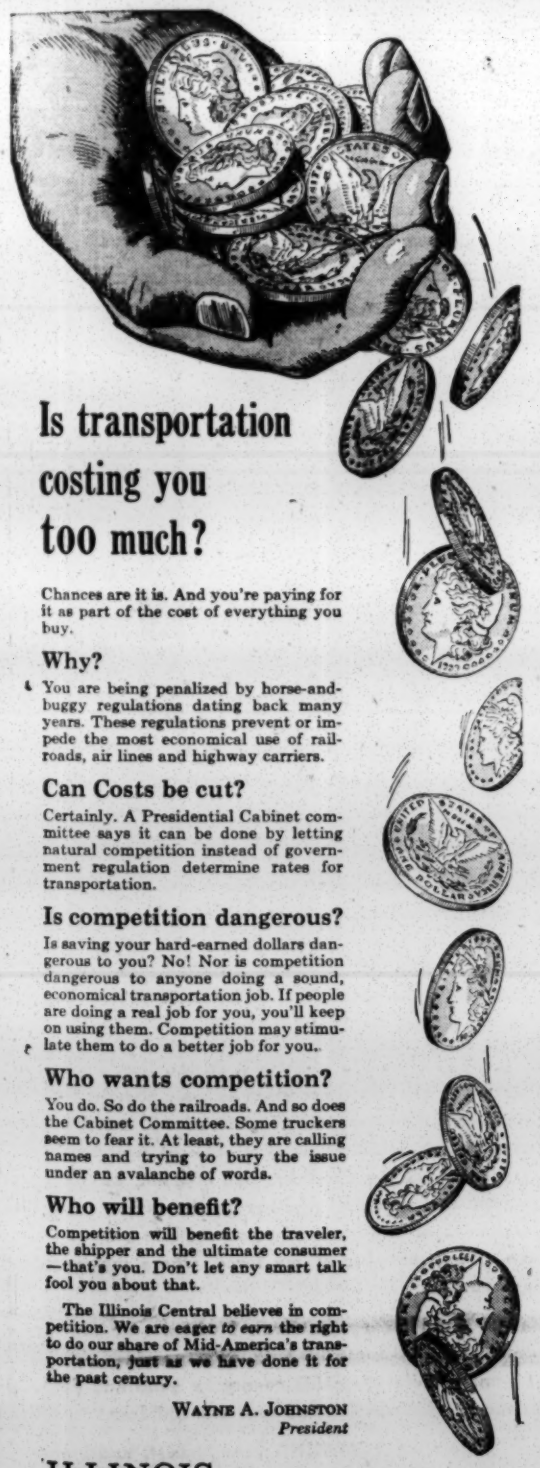
Red Queries



Is transportation costing you too much?

Chances are it is. And you're paying for it as part of the cost of everything you buy.

Why?

You are being penalized by horse-and-buggy regulations dating back many years. These regulations prevent or impede the most economical use of railroads, air lines and highway carriers.

Can Costs be cut?

Certainly. A Presidential Cabinet committee says it can be done by letting natural competition instead of government regulation determine rates for transportation.

Is competition dangerous?

Is saving your hard-earned dollars dangerous to you? No! Nor is competition dangerous to anyone doing a sound, economical transportation job. If people are doing a real job for you, you'll keep on using them. Competition may stimulate them to do a better job for you.

Who wants competition?

You do. So do the railroads. And so does the Cabinet Committee. Some truckers seem to fear it. At least, they are calling names and trying to bury the issue under an avalanche of words.

Who will benefit?

Competition will benefit the traveler, the shipper and the ultimate consumer —that's you. Don't let any smart talk fool you about that.

The Illinois Central believes in competition. We are eager to earn the right to do our share of Mid-America's transportation, just as we have done it for the past century.

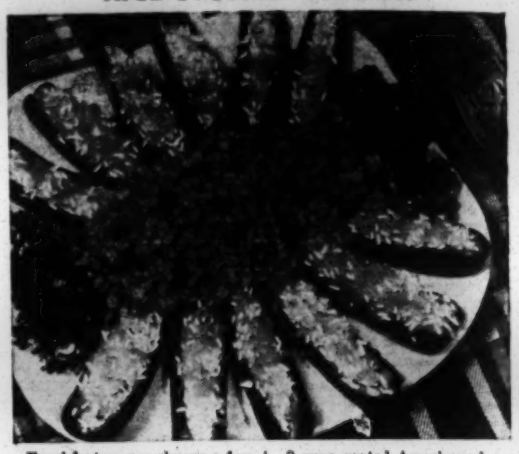
RICE-STUFFED FRANKS



Frankfurters are always a family favorite, but your family will find them a special treat when they're prepared with this unusual rice-and-cheese filling. For indoor or outdoor eating, winter or summer, these savory franks are sure to please—and they're inexpensive, too!

½ cup milk
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon onion salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
3 cups cooked rice
2 cups grated American cheese
12 frankfurters

Warm the milk, add butter, salt, pepper, onion salt, and dry mustard. Stir until butter is melted. Stir in rice and one cup of the cheese; let stand until milk is absorbed.

Split frankfurters almost in half lengthwise. Place cut side down on broiler pan and brown lightly on both sides.

Fill frankfurters with seasoned rice. Sprinkle top with remaining cheese. Slip under broiler until cheese melts and browns slightly. Yields six servings.

Town Talk

BY FED ROBINSON

Once in a while we meet some one along life's journey, who in passing leaves a little part of himself or herself with us. There aren't nearly enough of this kind of persons in the world, but those that are, are scattered around in such way they do the most good to the most people. For the past two months we have entertained one of these gifted persons in our town who came here to pastor our church while our own pastor attended the Baptist World Alliance meeting in London, England and traveled in the Holy Land.

This illustrious V. I. P. is Doctor Edward J. Caswell of Louisville, Ky. who was pastor in Greenwood, Miss. for 25 years. We will not attempt to describe him farther than to say he is so poor in worldly possessions that he would not accept any compensation from our church for his two months service. Of course had he been wealthy in this worldly goods, he would have made arrangements in advance for the highest possible salary. Isn't that a strange thing? Well, when you must depend upon this world's money you will have only those things that money will buy, but a few people have learned that there are so many things to enrich our lives which hasn't anything at all to do with money and Dr. Caswell is one of these, and he probably feels a sympathetic pity for us who by strain and stress whittle our lives away in the pursuit of money.

This man has lived so close to God for so long he has a countenance of a saint and a voice of an angel. To day he has a heart of gold would partly describe the quality of it, but not the tenderness of it.

We write down here on the day of his departure some of the gems of thought he left with us to live by.

He said God has a way of hiding things. He said God has hidden in the bosom of the earth and in the depths of the sea everything we need for our welfare. Minerals, oils, soils, herbs and water and the mystery of the germinated seed. All those things God has hidden in the earth, but His children he hides away in the palm of His hand so that we may be near Him and to have fellowship with Him. Isn't that a wonderful thought? . . . In the palm of His hand we are hidden from things that might destroy us.

From the 6th chapter of Daniel Dr. Caswell spoke about "open windows". Daniel was in a dangerous spot down there in Babylonia, a captive of a cruel king. Nebuchadnezzar and yet young Daniel fearlessly kept his windows open toward Jerusalem. Dr. Caswell said everyone has or should have some objectives in life toward which we keep open windows. Soldiers who have died on the battle field were often found to have in their pocket a locket, a strand of hair or a picture to bolster their hopes and dreams of coming home. . . . Open windows . . . there are many blessings that may come to all of us through open windows if they are opened toward heaven.

Sometimes we too are captured to things . . . material possessions . . . ambitious — vainglory — but as we grow older and wiser we generally open our windows toward better things to come and look outward and a little higher. "Once an old seamstress" says Dr. Caswell, "found her eyesight failing and the doctor told her she would have to lay down the work she had done for so long because her eyes would not endure it any longer. She was to train her tired old eyes upon more distant things . . . far off . . . for the rest she needed." And so it is with many of us. One day we will become weary of the stress and the press of it all, perhaps we'll be able to slow down a little and find in our hearts a yearning for a longer reach toward some thing better — through the windows opened for us by Edward Caswell.

CHECK-R-MIX FEED

Folks who let pullets "coast" by feeding grain without a good supplement, during the spring and summer months are usually in for a big let-down in the fall—when egg prices are at their best. That's because shortage of essential vitamins and minerals will slow up development and egg-laying for weeks.

If you're short of grain, or are trying to feed pullets an all-grain ration, we'd like to talk to you about Check-R-Mix. We make Check-R-Mix right here at our mill out of local grain and Micro-Mixed Purina Concentrates. These concentrates add the zip that grain alone lacks to give pullets a big push toward the laying house. And the price—well, why not come and see for yourself!

Folks who have already tried Check-R-Mix say we're exactly right when we call it "A good feed at a good price." We're sure you'll agree with them.

One of the year's outstanding attractions comes to the Grenada Theatre this week with the showing of "The Prodigal", MGM's spectacular Cinemascope drama based on the Biblical Parable of the Prodigal son.

Teaming Lana Turner and Edmund Purdom, with Louis Calnern also starred in a cast of thousands, this gigantic production is hailed as marking a new milestone in motion picture annals. Its tremendous outdoor sets recreating the cities of Joppa and idol-worshipping Damascus, 70 B. C., cover an area of 405,000 square feet, on which were constructed street scenes and palaces and temples of the heathen idols, Baal and Astarte. In addition, four of the world's largest sound stages were taken over in "The Prodigal"

It starts Saturday night at 10 p. m. and Sunday 2 and 4 p. m. and Monday.
